While yet Life's thread is woven on Time's loom,
There will be Youth—Beauty of Creation.
Youth poised on the dark precipice of night,
Thrilling to the mad stars' distant streaming,
And eager for flight into the unknown
To find the untold wonders of strange day.

Seekers of the nobleness of knowledge,
The poet penning thoughts, the scientist,
The dancer weaving joy into the heart,
Philosopher's mystic riddles solving,
The musician interpreting the soul,
The sculptor breathing life into the clay—

All are Youth keeping the Trust of Wisdom;
Always there will be Youth to hold the light.

The Senior Washington Trip

By JIMMIE JOBBINS

THURSDAY, April 10th, found the early birds of the Class of '30 clambering aboard the so-called special train en route to Washington. After a slight deviation to Annapolis, we reached our goal and of all the pilgrims to Washington it was generally agreed that we were the most begrimed. Since most of you either have been to the nation's capitol or will go if you get to be Seniors, we will not describe the trip in detail but merely hit the high spots.

All the baddies were put on the H.M.S. Kraybill. But a few of them got away and went in an unescorted bus. Words will never be adequate to describe what went on in this bus.

Friday morn Al Leyden went up to a guard on the treasury building and asked for a Coke.

Elsie Boyer knocked off five pounds climbing the Washington Monument.

The green parrot in the Pan-American Patio, aside from trying to crab the act, was very insistent.

The Washington electric light bulb company is still suing Bill Wise.

Duncan Dunn made his expenses.

The barkers in the busses know how many millions everything in Washington cost but they don't stick to each other's stories. One told us the Army building, a mile long, was built in ninety days and the other told us it was built in three months and was three blocks long. Maybe it was two other buildings.

Jay Mawhinney and Paul Seaman went for a ride Saturday morning.

The dance hall in the hotel was so small that you had to back up to turn around. But the orchestra was good—when they got there.

The most tantalizing thing of the whole trip was the smile in the voice of the fellow who said cheerfully, "Good morning, six-thirty."

The most beautiful thing seen was the blonde in Annapolis.

"Dick" Newburger was elected chief of the Chises, a word meaningless to a non-member.

According to many people it was rather ironical to show us all those ten-thousand-dollar bills in the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

Some people scorned the statement on the mimeographed sheets—"Don't wear new shoes"—and did. They are still limping.

The Senior girls were rather quiet Monday morning in school. They were too tired for dates Saturday night. Anyway, the fellows were all broke.

The breaks on the engine weren't so good coming home. We had to get a train back to Elkins Park.

The Katzes appear to be fourlets in the picture. No, nothing is wrong with your eyes—merely a revolving camera.

The canes started at a cartwheel and came down to two bits, but it took arguing.

And everybody was very glad to get back to school Monday.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

First Air Mail Pilot ..... Wilbur Sachsenmaier
Second Air Mail Pilot ..... James Jobbins
Chief of the Arab Band ..... Edward Hergelroth
Second Arab ..... Eloise Taussig
Third Arab ..... David Katz
Fourth Arab ..... Natalie Rosenberg

Scene: Somewhere in the Benhara Desert (first cousin to Sahara); about 8.45 P. M. As curtain rises two air mail pilots are seen pumping up the tire of an airplane.

First Pilot: That was a tough break—that woodpecker puncturing the tire of our plane.

Second Pilot: Yes, just when we have to get these presents to Cheltenham High School in time for graduation. It gives me a weepy feeling below the second button of my vest to think how disappointed they will be.

(Enter from side, four Arabs.)

First Pilot: Oh, I say! What's up?

Chief: You'll see!

(The Arabs pounce on the aviators; bind them, and stand at attention.)

Chief: The meeting will please come to order. All those in favor say "Aye"; all opposed "Aye"; the "Ayes" have it. By the grace of Allah, what brings you here?

First Pilot: We are pilots of the United States Air Mail.

Second Pilot: Carrying graduation gifts to the Seniors at Cheltenham—High School located at . . . . .

Chief (interrupting): You mean those exciting five-and-ten-cent purchases, presented with flattering messages?

(The other Arabs rummaging in the plane drag out the mail bag and find the gifts.)

Chief: Ah, the cat's out of the bag. Look—eee!! Let's see what this is all about. (To other Arabs.) Here, get to work, I'm not paying you for nothing!

Ned Hergelroth: We present you with this baseball bat so you can hit yourself on the head and see "Starrs" more often.

James Annand and Duncan Dunn: We present you with these straw hats and hope they come in handy down on the farm.

James Bartlett: Here is a little monkey who will be a companion to you when you start swinging around down in the gym.

James Buck: Our treasury is pretty low but we are glad that we still have one buck left. Here is a little bank which we think is very appropriate.

Ira Chilton: To little Ira we present a bell to put on his "Hoky-Poky" wagon if in later years he still continues selling ice cream.

Charles Conklin: We have a sneaking suspicion that seven years ago Charley must have broken a mirror; so we hand him this new one and hope that he doesn't break it when entering college.

John Doess: To the boy with the golden locks we present this hair ribbon to tie up his hair.

Robert Dowling: Here is a quill pen to use if you decide to follow in the footsteps of Bud Fisher.

Robert Ebenbach: Here is a little boy who is just rarin' to go and to him we give this sheet of music entitled "I Wanna Be BAD."

Thomas Evoy: Here is some talcum powder, Tommy, to cover up your blushes.

Albert Fenton and John Cathers: Two pillows to put on the benches out on the athletic field. Need any more be said?

Victor Karlson: To the youngest member of our class we give this rattle.

Frank Kaufman: Knowing that Olives are your favorite fruit. We aim to please, so here is a whole bottle.

Henry Keire: In order that you may entertain others as you have entertained us, we give you one of Fritz Kreisler's old fiddles. Would you like to start now?

John Landis: We all think that you are a good egg. Nevertheless, an egg beater would help you mix around a little more.

Allan Lyden: Well, well, what have we here? A pair of loaded dice. Now, Allan, maybe with these your luck will change.

Osbourne Love and Robert Numbers: Palmolive Soap—of course, to keep that school-girl complexion.

Aaron Manderbach: No less than a lunch wagon for Aaron. Perhaps you will manage this as a lunch room should be managed.

Jay Mawhinney: Come and get your matriculation card for the Deaf and Dumb Institute. There your voice will be a big help.

Mildred Wolfrom: When Mildred dances she reminds us of Sitting Bull. Take it on the chin?

Madeline Waite: You've been waiting for eighteen years; we hope you won't have to "Waite" much longer. Take this calendar.

Frimma Tutelman: Here is a box to put in all the hearts you've broken, and those still to come.

Julia Thompson: We doubt very much whether Julia will have to use this giggle water.

Katherine Trapp: In signing a contract as a pianist beware of "traps." A pun my word, a mouse "Trapp"!

Paul Seaman: Here's a return ticket to Washington to give the most beautiful girl in the world a break.

Pelham Birdsong: When girls become so bold as to speak to you there is only one remedy—"be nonchalant and light this Murad."

Earl C. Miller, Jr.: Just a small piece of coal (Cole). Does that suggest anything to you?

George and Walter Moore: We have a famous musician in our midst, and although Walter is not talented in this line, we sincerely hope that he will always accompany George, in order to turn the sheets for him.

Richard Newberger: Nothing else but a pillow to take to your classes, Dick. You know we all hate to see you suffer so.

George Norman and Jack Edgerton: We give you these stilts as the next step from the boxes you've stood on in the lunch room. We feel that you deserve a raise.

Robert Parent: There is plenty of food in this little lunch basket to make up for the time you've lost playing the piano for us during lunch period.

Edward Pike: A little fishing rod! Certainly hope it is a success in getting your future pike.

Edwin Prettyman: A whole stack of "I owe you's" to help you pay your debts.

Walter Robb: Here, my boy, is a time clock to punch when you come in and go out at lunch time.

Warren Roberts: Here are some "F" and "M" football letters. Eventually, why not now?

Marie Zellfelder: To Marie goes this dangerous weapon to protect the interest of the council. A water pistol for you.

Elizabeth Zeliff: Silence is golden. You certainly have earned this $100 gold piece.

Joseph Dalton: Paging Mr. Dalton! Telegram from Herbert Hoover. An answer, at last, to the card you wrote him in April.

Marjorie Phelps: A bottle of ginger ale—memories of Washington.

Jack Henszey: Here is a capsule of synthetic food which will make it unnecessary for you to eat for the rest of the week. Chew it carefully. (To be taken with water after every meal.)

Eloise Taussig: We give you this pony so you can ride after you leave us the way you have ridden through high school.

Esther Duckloe: We give you this miniature safe which you should have had in 1926 when you began your career as a treasurer.

Harry Tucker: "How to Smoke a Pipe in Five Lessons," put out by Dunhill and sent to Mr. Harry Tucker.

William Wise: Just another darn good "skate."

Austin Woolens: Look what we have here—a fashion book. You'll have to do some fast stepping, Aust, to keep up with the "Stiles."

Elizabeth Landis: Here is a box of birdseed, Lizzie, to keep your voice in condition.

Ruth Landis and Mildred Miller: You might not make good policemen, but here's a whistle to attract attention to yourselves.

Marion Macauley: A lemon is used for various purposes, but in this case we think it very appropriate to make a lemon "Koch."

Agnes Hegerich and Matilda Miller: When bigger and better candy is made these girls will sell it. Some candy for you.

Kathryn Montieth: It's not right for one girl to be so sweet, so we give you this pickle to taste the other side of life.

Clara Murphy: Here's a green flag, Clara, very fitting to let us know when you're around.

Jean McCormick and Esther Openshaw: The best advertisement we can find to illustrate Fleishman's yeast. Before and after.

Ruth Openshaw: In view of the pleasure the class has had witnessing the scraps between you and a certain member of the English Department, we award you this scrap book.

Grace Paist: Just to show our appreciation for your good work in the orchestra we present you with this letter of introduction to Stokowski. He might need a good xylophonist.

Olive Redford: Take this curling iron with you, Ollie, in case you get caught in the rain some time.

Natalie Rosenberg: Horses, horses, horses—crazy over horses, horses, horses. In order that you may follow the races in later life, we give you this shovel.

Marie Selby: Although we don't think Marie is used to running up charge accounts, we present her with this "Bill," which she will probably understand.

Betty Starr: Halt—attention—a tin soldier for Betty because we suspect she is fond of Colonels.

Betty Stiles: We give you this back scratcher for the Woolens you keep so close to you.

Frances Armstrong: Here, Frances, take this piece of material, because we think that next to yourself you like Flannel best.

Grace Barbieri: We always say Grace before we eat (says the Knocker Committee putting marshmallows in their mouths).

Louise Beck: Whasa matta wis itta Louise? Is it not appropriate to give a bottle to one who likes to talk babyish? Don't fro dis; it will bweak.

Clara Berlin: You don't seem to have been able to appreciate our humor. Do you think this College Humor would help any?

Catherine Blamberg: Our intentions are of the best in giving you this sugar to keep you from becoming "Sour" too soon.

Dolly Blumenthal: To Amelia, alias Diane, alias Dolly, we give this black flag to hang out when she flunks her "College Boards." The orchestra will now lead us in a funeral march.

Elsie Boyer: Heap big Injun. Just a pair of boxing gloves to further Elsie in her athletic career.

Grace Brooks: All the girls have been wondering what your secret of reducing is. Is it for sale? We are willing to pay for what we get (or lose).

Catherine Brown: We give you this sailor hat so you can feel more at home at the Navy Yard; and with this goes a pennant so you can "Rah Rah" for them as you have been doing for us.

Helen Brown: This green dress is given to you with the best of intentions. We hope that you'll be easily recognized by other people, but to us you will always look like Helen Brown.

Florence Butz: We don't feel that you need a start in your artistic career but what more can we do than give you this paint box.

Mary Clay: You'll be a "King" before long and we're sorry that we can't supply you with all your royal clothing, but we hope this crown will do.

Betty Cole: We learn from experience. Here, Betty, some life insurance to issue to your passengers.

Lydia Dickinson: This gun may come in handy some day when you become a notorious gang leader. Shoot to kill.

Georgia Eckels: Come off your high hat, Georgia—everything is "Jake" now.

Betty Funk: We know that you do not think that the desks in the class rooms are close enough to those of the teachers. Will this small movable one help?

Rachel Hansell: "Washington"—(———). A teething ring to bite on.

Alice Heimerdinger and Byron Schultz: One of the secret romances of the class which no doubt will surprise everyone. To save time and shoe leather we give you this marriage license. Bless you, my children.

Anna Herr: In order to let everyone know where the fire is, here's a bell to put on the engine.

Elizabeth Hess: An actress in our midst—Colleen Moore's double. Here's your ticket to Hollywood.

Elvira Johns and Milton Jones: These two have been such good hosts that we feel obliged to give them this permit to open a night club.

Alberta Krewson, Helen Minalgo, and Margaret Fairlamb: Use these rattles and let us hear from you.

Isabel Koch: Clothes make the woman; here's some more material.

Evelyn Koch and William Imhof: One of the necessities for starting in housekeeping is pots and pans. They may be used for various purposes.

Robert Roth: In future years we wonder whether you will pal around with Bobby Jones. Here's a start.

Wilbur Sachsenmaier: Two things for our little Bill—a bar and a mug let the bar speak for itself, Bill, and the mug is not for shaving.

Archie Salem: A trumpet for Archie. We expect to hear from you later, but not tonight.

Daniel Seigle: There were many things that we could have given Dan, but we chose this can of "laughing gas" to give out with his jokes. Ha! ha! ha!

Richard Furlong: Bang bang! A gun, to keep the Wolfrom the door. Maybe it will take more than this.

Thomas Gunther: The gangsters are looking around for a standard dictionary. We sort of think that you could help them out, by listing some of your words in this notebook.

Joseph Henderson: Help help!! Water wings to help Joe on his mile run. We mean that he'll run more gracefully if he lies on his back.

Henry Heiser: Hush-a-by baby—come here, Henry, and get this cradle for your admirers in the Junior School.

Norman Hibbs: Norman has won so many letters, since he has been in school, for various athletics, that we would like to give him another sweater to put them on.

Wayne Hillegas: Because of your interest in tailors, how would you like a sewing set?

John Hood: All John needs to compete with Rudy Vallee is a saxophone. Always ready to oblige Hoody.

James Jobbins: Toot! toot! A foreign-made car for Jimmy. Here is one of your own to smash up.

Clarence Johnston: Here's a badge, sheriff.

Morris Simon: Just a pair of gym bloomers to help you in your calisthentics.

Grant Spreng: May we present you with this box of dates? They're easy enough to get in the store but hard to get in school. Aren't they, Grant?

William Ellis: Here's some itching powder, Bill, to keep you awake in classes. Maybe when it takes effect you'll look as if you had some pep.

David and Louis Katz: Two placards on which one reads, "I'm Louis," and "I'm David—I have a mole."

Arsenia G'frer: With this pencil and pad you have everything a stenog needs except some gum, and if Mr. Kraybill will look the other way we'll give it to you.

Marion Coyne: Heart-broken because Jay threw her over, she becomes a singer in a five and ten cent store. This sheet of music will come in handy.

Vincent Shields and Harold Gill: Here are two lads we don't know much about but they look to us as if they might be radio bugs. Perhaps in the future they will have a hairdressing establishment, measuring wave lengths. Take these tape measures.

James Farquhar: The royal "Jimmy," noted for his famous Cheltenham Harem. He needs a towel to wear; all Sultans wear them.

Mildred Sachsenmaier: Meow! Just a couple of kittens who, when they grow up, will still be your champions after you graduate.

John Galbraith: We wonder if you can manage these dolls as well as you did the football squad.

George Stella: Here is one person who lives up to his artistic looks, but to complete the picture he should wear a beret.

Eleanor Burley: Why must you be so quiet? If we gave you some bells would you wear them in order to let us know when you are around?

Lydia Uebele: As a recreation from your usual reading material, take this collection of trash.

Francis Unruh: Here, old girl, take these medicated discs, because we feel that your voice can't last forever like this.

Mildred Yetter: To our future world champion discus thrower: take this lid and remember that Cheltenham gave you your start.

Regina Schupack, Carmelita Turner and Mildred Oldenbaugh: We give these three girls an egg timer, a waitress cap, and an account book, all necessary to open up a hash house.

(Alarm; and voice from off stage, "Given by courtesy of the Bulova Watch Co.")

Chief (looking at wrist watch): By the bones of my pet camel—five o'clock (addressing aviators). Say, which is West?

Second Pilot (pointing to North): Over there, I guess.

(The Arabs face the North, fall on knees for prayer and make obeisance three times.)

(Curtain falls—and who can blame it?)

Class Will

COUNTY OF MONTGOMERY
STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA

We, the Senior Class of 1930, of Cheltenham High School, Elkins Park, Pennsylvania, being of comparatively high intelligence, sound mind, and clear memory, do make, publish, and declare this our last and only will and testament.

Item I

We direct that all unnecessary debts including our funeral expenses be paid as soon after our departure as conveniently may be done.

Item II

We bequeath to the present Upper Middler Class our apparent conceit, our wool-pulling abilities, and our class-cutting talents, which have gained for us our present eminence on the dizzy heights of Seniordom.

Item III

To the Student Body we bequeath our notorious school spirit, to be used only in case of emergency.

Item IV

The standing records of Betty Stiles and "Aust" Woolens we leave to Sue Murray and Jack Peabody.

Item V

To the rest of the world we leave the chance to put future memorial funds on a competitive basis.

Item VI

We leave for the consideration of posterity the brilliant plan providing for a two-day school week and a five-day week-end.

Item VII

To anyone in need of it, we bequeath Frank Kaufman's advice on how to pursue a red-head without being singed.

Item VIII

To the little tenth-year lassies, namely, Bert Drayman, Betty Meyers, Nan Wagner, and Jean Atkinson, we leave a verbal charter permitting them to form a "Let Alone" sorority.

Item IX

We bequeath the vacancies left by certain Senior girls in Room 208 to any Upper-Middler girls who may wish to apply.

Item X

To Ruth Van Thyne we leave a specially constructed kiddie-car on which to break Cheltenham's speed records.

Item XI

To any enterprising patron of the school we leave suggestions for the installation of a rubber locker arrangement to remedy certain crowded conditions.

Item XII

If there yet remain any vestiges of grass on the banks, we leave it to be tenderly nurtured by future Student Councils.

Item XIII

To the following beneficiaries, we bequeath the following personal property:

To the Smithsonian Institute, Aaron Manderbach's Ford.

To Mary McCray, Frances Unruh's reputation as a charming hostess, which she acquired in Washington.

To "Dicky" Wolf, Jimmy Farquhar's "way with the ladies."

To Lucille Zarr, Rachel Hansell's knot.

To Roberta Brown, the nearly perfected technique of our champion gold-digger, Catherine Brown, her sister, knowing that she can carry on capably.

To John Heist, Tom Evoy's blush.

To Laura Krumrich, the combined poetic and story-telling abilities of "Peg" Fairlamb and "Bob" Parent, realizing they are especially needed.

To Britton Harris, Natalie Rosenberg's "Devil May Care" attitude.

To Lavinia Hergelroth, Grace Paist's saintliness.

To any uninformed teachers, Miss Scarborough's forthcoming encyclopedia on "Sponsordom and Its Evils."

We hereby designate "Bunny" Lasky, President of the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-one, as sole executor of this document.

In witness whereof, we, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty, Cheltenham High School, the testator, do set our hand and seal to this, our last will and testament.

El Delator

EL DELATOR has now completed its twenty-first year of existence. This year we have maintained a distinctive and very unique type of magazine. The title page cuts, made by last year's editor, have been standardized. The new department of modern book reviews has been a success. The increased quality of the poetry department is obvious. The fine appearance of the magazine has been greatly enhanced by illustrative headings for each story and covers attractive in both design and color. Also, we have retained the double style of makeup and the antique stock.

We feel that EL DELATOR may take its place among the best high school magazines, judging from both contents and appearance. So, as the staff this year has taken progressive steps, we know that EL DELATOR will continue to grow during future years.

Cheltonian

Under the guidance of Miss Downes, the Cheltonian has greatly improved during the past year. The Staff is using a former plan of operating without an Editor-in-chief. The Managing Editor assumes charge of assembling each issue.

The publication is decidedly better in printing and make-up. The news sources other than athletics are covered more competently than formerly, thereby producing a better balanced paper.

Through the plan of subscription in connection with the A. A. ticket nearly every student has received the paper. Because of this, the staff confidently hopes that the Cheltonian has proved to be one of the progressive agents in the school for better school spirit.

Clubs

CLUBS are important activities in the school life of Cheltenham students. Unusual interest in them has been shown this year, with which has come the addition of several new ones as Modern Authors, Girls' Fencing and Book Lovers. Among the other clubs continued from last year many have done outstanding work. The Camera, Band, Dramatic, Social Service and Girls' Choral Clubs are numbered among these.

Senior Student Council

THE Student Government Association consisting of twenty-four members including the elected officers, has been meeting each Wednesday morning. The actual work of the association has been largely carried on by the various committees appointed by the president. These committees consist of a chairman, who is a member of the association, and such other members of the student body as he or she desires to appoint.

The following are a list of these active committees: Lunch Room, Lost and Found, School Property, Assembly, Publicity, Home Room Award, Fire Drill.

Each of these committees has been very active. The Lunch Room Committee has made our lunch room one of which we may be proud. The Lost and Found Committee has done a commendable piece of work and largely through their efforts our treasury has been able to pay the last fifty dollars due on our pledge to the Abington Memorial Hospital as well as to permit the School Property Committee to plant the hedge in front of the school. The treasury has also been able to assist in the completion of several home room projects, such as the placing of new ribbons on the ventilators

The School Property Committee has been unusually successful in caring for school property and having such damage as has been done promptly repaired. Each committee has done its work efficiently and effectively.

National Honor Society

IN MAY, 1929, Frances Armstrong, Esther Duckloe, Ned Hergelroth, Aaron Manderbach, Ruth Openshaw and Frances Unruh were elected to membership in the National Honor Society.

The officers for 1930 were Aaron Manderbach, president; Ned Hergelroth, vice-president; Ruth Openshaw, secretary, and Esther Duckloe, treasurer.

For a half year this group, under the guidance of Miss MacDonald, endeavored to carry out the plans initiated in 1929. The listed Student plan was continued, and working on suggestions of the previous group, an attempt was made to devise a point system that would limit and encourage participation in activities. Among the numerous other activities of the group was the organization of a club, the Leadership Forum, for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to leadership. The speakers have been Dr. Rowland, Miss Nusbaum, Mr. Kraybill, Mrs. Lambert, Mr. Herring and Dr. Steinmetz. The Honor Society entertained Norristown Honor Society at a tea to which representatives from Lower Merion and Jenkintown were also invited. Frances Unruh was invited, by the Lower Merion representatives, to speak to their student body about our activities. Frances did this, and as a result, a chapter was organized in that school. The Honor Society also contributed $10 to the Karlson Memorial Fund; and its Social Welfare Committee sent cards to students and faculty members who were ill.

A new Alma Mater song, written by Frances Armstrong, arose from this group. It was presented to the student body at the Installation Service on March 21, 1930, when Florence Butz, Henry Heyser, Frank Kaufman, Phyllis Giles, James Farquhar, Mary Clay, Louise Daniel, Marcia Daniel, Richard Wolf, Annamarie Heinemann, and Sarah Hendricks were taken in. The Reverend Jack Harte spoke on this occasion.

Reinforced with fresh ideas and opinions from these newly elected members, the Honor Society concentrated their efforts on the point system and an accumulative reward for service. The results of these efforts formulated themselves into a definite plan. A certificate was presented at Commencement to not more than 10 per cent. of the graduating class, Honor Society members, excluded, who rendered conspicuous service to the school during their four years in High School.

The season of activity for this group closed with the annual alumnæ dinner on June 11.

Interscholastic Forensic Society

THE Debating Team has not had a very successful year, winning only one of six debates.

The question for debate was: "Resolved, That the Installment Plan of Buying is Harmful to the American People."

The personnel of the affirmative team included Duncan Dunn, William Kraybill, Grace Paist, and Frances Unruh. They debated Radnor and Lansdowne.

The personnel of the negative team included Clara Berlin, Samuel Blumenthal, Ruth Openshaw and Britton Harris. They debated Abington and Upper Darby.

The affirmative team which debated George School included Grace Smelo, Grace Paist, Louise Daniel, and Frances Unruh.

The negative team which debated George School included Clara Berlin, Isabel Koch, Elsie Boyer, and Ruth Openshaw. This debate was the only victory of the season.

Mr. Karl Smith coached the teams.

Senior Play

The Senior play of the Class of 1930 which was presented on March 7 and 8, was, "Mr. Pim Passes By," by A. A. Milne. The cast follows:

Anne, the maid ..... Clara Berlin
Mr. Pim ..... Jack Edgerton
Dinah ..... Natalie Rosenberg
Olivia Marden ..... Dolly Blumenthal
Brian Strange ..... George Stella
Sir George Marden ..... James Farquhar
Lady Marden ..... Frimma Tutelman

The play was produced under the direction of J. Lawrence Strickler. Miss Nusbaum and the Art Department constructed the setting.

Upper Middler Play

THE play presented by the Upper Middler Class this year was the well-known classic of New England character, "Icebound," by Owen Davis. It was enacted on the evening of December 13, 1929, before an audience, which, in spite of inclement weather, was probably the largest of the year to attend a dramatic entertainment in Cheltenham High School. The leading roles were admirably played by Robert Beatty and Annemarie Heinemann, and splendid support was furnished by the rest of the cast, consisting of Albert Bull, Edith Donat, Margaret Lane, Louise Daniel, Dick Wolf, Gertrude Clowes, Mary Landis, Alfred Busse, Jack Staub, and Matthew McIlhenny. The play was coached by the '31 Class sponsor, Mr. Weston.

The Band

THE band, under the able supervision of Mr. Taylor, has accomplished a fine piece of work this year. In the beginning of the season, when Mr. Taylor has a handful of people, the band was talked about with a skeptical tone, but after the students, as well as outsiders, saw and heard them "do their stuff," at the various football games, they began to sit up and take notice.

A little later in the season, the pitiful plea of Mr. Kraybill, in reference to our, "Pantsless boys," brought to the fore the "good Samaritans"—the Parents-Teachers Association, who willingly volunteered to supply the necessary pecuniary needs of our band.

On Thanksgiving morning, when the band strutted out on the field in their blue and gold uniforms, everyone's eyes popped out of their heads, and what a cheer the band received! From that time on the band has been recognized as A BAND. Everyone is looking forward with great interest to an even better performance from the band, in the future.

The Orchestra

THE orchestra, this year, under the excellent leadership of Mr. Taylor, has greatly increased the quality of its performances. Many new instruments have been added and more interest has been displayed. The fine appreciation of the school has been obvious upon the occasions of its performances.
